This year's worthy winner is Lucy Butt who appears to have had a splendid year at all levels of competition. The final table includes scores from 64 events – large and small. As I have mentioned several times, when presenting the interim results and in last years' report, it is no longer possible to have hard and fast rules for inclusion if we want to represent the orienteering activities of all our members fairly. Wherever possible I use the age classes for calculating scores and something similar to our original colour criteria for smaller events. Enhanced scores are given from events at the sharp end of competition, eg. JK, BOC, National Events and Scottish 6 day.

In consideration for the sizeable proportion of our members who are now retired I might try incorporating the Wednesday army events, although moderating them will always pose a problem. Also they probably serve better as training events. I await comments!

Please be aware this is a fun competition – nothing is desperate!
